MINING BOARD.

Before the First Board assembled this morning, New-York Central was sold down to 83;, and it was generally anticipated that other stocks would to some extent follow, and thus establish the reaction which has been for some time earnestly but vainly looked for. To the surprise of a majority of the Board the market proved very strong during the whole session, and even New-York Central, after touching 831, became firmer, and closed in demand at 83%. Hudson

River was very buoyant, and with a fair business advanced to 541. Erie, Harlem-old and preferred-shares were active and better, and for the Western shares generally there was well distributed and very active inquiry. The only exceptions were the Michi-gan roads which were rather dull, and about ! * cent lower. Illinois Central and Galena were very firm, and for the former the quotations were 1 & cent higher. Between the sessions, New-York Central was marked down to 82‡, and other stocks were sold at a decl ne of 12 + cent from the morning prices.

These transactions established the opening quotations for the Second Board, and the break was quite general, although very moderate. The shares of the Harlem road were an exception to the general market, and for the Preferred stock 43 was paid on the call. Toward the close of the session prices appeared to have settled upon firmer ground, but there was no important change after the adjournment. We notice sales of Brooklyn Central Railroad at the First Board at 100. This is the first transaction in the stock at the Board. The Brooklyn

Central is one of the horse roads which commenced operations about a year since, and is paying quarterly dividends of 2 P cent. The trade in railway bonds continues brisk, and prices are generally higher, notwithstanding the decline in shares. The reaction of the afternoon was not unwelcome to operators of the Stock Exchange, the market having acquired a speculative impetus far beyond the expectation of even the most hopeful, and especially for Western shares. There is too much hope and confidence in regard to the future to admit of any decided or continuous decline, and the probability is that the market will gain strength in the recoil. The closing prices were, for Virginia 6s, 91 7 @ volume since our last review. Many of the early trade buyers, as well as the jobbers, have not returned from their recreations, and the covers still remain. Nevertheless, a few houses are showing signs of returning activity, and have contracted for certain styles of goods to be delivered about the 1st prox., when it is supposed great activity will prevail. The production of general Domestic goods, during the next two months, will fall short of the average production for the last ten years. The streams and reservoirs of New-England, which furnish power to the mills, are becoming very low, and many mills have already reduced their production, while others have discontinued it entirely. The fall of water during the season has been only about one-third of the usual quantity required to fill the reservoirs, and, if the drouth continues a few weeks longer, a more general suspension will be witnessed. The Cotton market shows no signs of recovery from its hitherto depressed condition, and the favorable reports of the growing crop will add to the declining tendency which has prevailed during the past month. The receipts thus far show an excess of nearly 800,000 bales over last year, and over 1,400,000 bales of the previous year. A large portion of the crop remaining in the market is of the low grades, and it is supposed that if the last crop had been carefully bandled the receipts would not have exceeded 4,250,000 bales for 1859

There is more movement in Woolens of all kinds. The Western and South-Western jobbers are in the market, and will take more of this class of goods this season than for any period during the past two years. Heavy English and Ge man Woolens are not moving as rapidly as could be wished, but fancy Cassimeres of new styles are taken at full prices. Neat styles adapted to suits, and plaids of various sizes, are those most inquired for. A few of the larger plaids, of bold coloring, have appeared, but are taken very sparingly, as the ultra styles are generally considered dangerous.

Meltons of American manufacture are also out, and promise to be wanted, to a certain extent. We have seen some that are superior to the English article, for the reason that they are made entirely of wool, while nearly all of the English Meltons are partly composed of shoddy.

The export trade continues without much abatement. but the contracts for future delivery are not so easily creasing demand from the hom trade has added firmness to the market of export styles, and in some instances an advance has been obtained.

In regard to the leather failings in London, The Shoe and Leather Reporter says:

All accounts agree that the houses principally en All accounts agree that the houses principary en-gaged in the American trade s and firm, and are in no canger. The firms that have failed have few creditors on tris side of the Atlantic. There were consignments in the hands of some of them from American houses, a year or two ago, but these have been generally closed and settled for, and have not been replaced. The dealers of Liverpool, where the American trade is now centered, have suffered little compared with those of London.

The effect on the leather and hide markets has been instant and overpowering. Large quantities of leather have been offered at the different London marts without inding purchasers. Sales of market hides have been made at 30 and 40 P cent decline from previous prices. Foreign hides are reported as having yet suffered but intue depreciation. The reason is obvious. So long a importers cannot sell at any price they are willing to take, they will endeavor to sustain asking rates.

The effect on our market will unquestionably be to depress prices. Orders have been received from English. little depreciation. The reason is obvious. So long as glish houses, by parties in New-York holding hides or their account, to offer them for side, and some of then their account, to other them for saie, and some of them zeem to be feeling the market. These instructions are probably discretionary, for it seems scarcely possible that any sane man would commit such a suicidal act as to break down our market by forced sales. We have private advices from England saying that the hides that have been sold there were principally taken for New-York and Boston, and that large quantities would be shipped to this country within a few weeks. Albe shipped to this country within a lew weeks. Although this comes from a usually well informed source, we are included to take it with some abatement. Probably no one could save the investment even at 40 P cent decline from previous rates by transporting to this country the heavy English market hides, which are unsuited to our wants. Undoubtedly we shall receive some consignments of hides from the overstock of Great Britain, notwithstanding we are already more than supplied. Great care should be exercised by our importers and consigners. Our trade so far nally well informed source by our importers and consignees. Our trade so far are uninjured, and there is little darger of direct loss to any extent from our connection with Great Britain. A gradual fetting down of prices to meet those who need hides for immediate use, will prevent a panie here; but to force large sales of bides would break down the lesther market, and at the same time defeat their own object. We strongly arge a wise and cantious poncy, locking to the interests of each department of the trade. A gradual letting down of prices to meet those who The Chicago Press thus alludes to an influence at work in the price of grain in that market: This depreciation in corn is a tributable, also, to a certain extent, to the apward tendency in freights. To.

day freights advanced [c. * bush., and all the vessels offered were readily taken at the advance. The absence of quite a large fleet of grain-carrying vessels now engaged in the Lake Superior trade, and the probable heavy supply of Spring grain in three or four weeks, as well as the amount of corn now in store-1,915,000 bush.—all tend to the conclusion that, during the ensuing four morths, freights will rule unusually high. And it is this feeling which has lessened the speculative inquiry and disarranged the calculations of nearly all operators with regard to the ruling prices of Corn in August and September. Freights have so long ruled at a ruinously low point that speculators and shippers have paid but little regard to the probability of the carrying interest ever rallying above reasonable rates. The fact, however, is forcing itself upon the trade now, with all its consequences.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT-JULY 19. ONFESSION OF HICKS—SUIT AGAINST THE EXPRESS FOR INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT.

In the Clerk's Office of this Court, this morning,

In the Clerk's Office of this Court, this morning, Robert M. De Witt, the publisher, took the initiatory steps to a suit sgainst Messra James and Erastus Brooks, the publishers of The N. Y. Morning and Evening Express, for alleged infringement of copyright, in reprinting from the book published by said De Witt the confession of Hicks, the prate. The confession is alleged to have been thus reprinted verbatim, and on the same day the copyrighted book was published. Damages to the amount of $10,000 are claimed. A capias has been issued, returnable on the 26th inst, when the declaration will be filed. COURT OF COMMON PLEAS-SPECIAL TERM-JULY 19.

Isaac J. Oliver agt. The St. Nicholas Fire Insurance Company.

This was a motion made by the defendant to open a judgment obtained by the plaintif, under a policy for loss by ire on his premises, No. 32 Beekman street. The judgment was obtained by default. The default was shown to have o curred by secient, and the defendant sought leave to serve his answer, and defend.

The next one of the service was the service of the service was the servic obtained by default. The default was shown to have o curred by socident, and the defendant sought leave to serve his answer, and deiend.

The motion was opposed on the ground that one of the defenses sought to be set up by the answer was against good conscience, was made with a view to complet a comprosise, and that the other defense, if true, apparently admitted a portion of the arcount claimed to be disc.

The afficient is discussed the following facts: That the plainliff procured an insurance on the plinters' stock through the same broker with the defendant and seven other companies aumounting in all to $10,000, and paid the premiums. The defendant the St. Nicholas Insurance Company, did not return the policy for some months, and not until after a fire had occurred. After the fire, the desindant celled at the office of the company and requested his policy, when he was informed that there was no policy there, not that they he deever made out one. He then requested to see the books of the company which was refused. Subsequently the company delivered up the policy and joined with the other companies in appraising the loss, which was appraised at the cull amount of the insurance effected, and all the other companies paid their amounts in full. The defendant then offered the plaintiff $500, or one half the amount of the policy in the settlement, which was refused, and plaintiff brought his action. The defense set forth in the answer was, that the other iosurances had been effected without notice, as required by the terms of the policy; and, secondly, that the terms "printers' stock" used in he policy did not cover anything but paper, thick, and printed r atter, and that under this interpretation the loss was to $100. The ecunsel argued that plaintiff had no means of learning whether leave had been indorsed on the policy for other insurance, as the Company retained it; uext that the Company had charged its defense set decreased.

The counsel argued that pisintiff had no means of learning whether leave had been indorsed on the policy for other insurance, as the Company retained it; next that the Company had charged its defense since application was first made by defendant for his policy and that the tender of the $500 was evidence that the last defense was not true; because, if true, and there being other policies on the same property, the defendant would be liable for only his proportion.

The Court decided that the default might be opened and the defendant had a large the condition that he not his condition that he was the con-defendant showed to answer, upon condition that he pay the ex-penses of entering the judgment and $275 of the claim, within two days. Charles E. Whitehead, for plaintiff; J. C. Dimmick, for defendant. SUPREME COURT-GENERAL TERM.-JULY 19.-Before Jun

The Receil denied the application and appeal was taken, which was decided to-day by the General Term. It is understood that the Court summimously concurred in affirming the order, and hold that there is no power to grant a commission excepting where the winnesse to be examined are named, and the interrogatories to be situached to the commission.

A PAIR OF OLD FOGIES .- The Newark Daily A PAIR OF OLD FOGIES.—The Newark Daily Advertiser relates the following: "Among the carriers of our paper is one who has lived very near half a century, and in all that time has never left the State but once. Then he visited New York City, going up as far as Fiftieth street, and thence over to Brooklyn. He has been no further south than Rahway, nor west than Springfield, nor north than Rahway, nor all the amusement in that line in which he has participated. He has traversed his newspaper route for the past thinteen years, and in that time has walked over 100,000 miles. As a supplement to the above, we may mention the case of another person, a bachelor farmer in this county, who has not left his farm for the past twenty-five years, but has lived in entire scalasion during that period. It would be an exceedingly entertaining sight to witness the looks of astonahment which would mantle the faces of this pair of model 'old fogies,' if they could be induced to take a peep at 'New-York as it is.'

ROMANTIC ADVENTURE—CRUEL TERMINATION.—On Friday last, says The Sussex Democrat, Miss Darling, the daughter of John Darling, a farmer of Sparta township, in this county, left her father's house with a young man named Dalley, for the purpose of being united to him in the holy bonds of matrimony. The father disliked Mr. Dalley, and was opposed to her narriage with him. Her mother undertook the unpleasant duty of breaking the news to the father, who, when informed, went to the woodsnear by and cut two large hickory sti ks and came to the house, where he commenced beating his wife in the most unmerciful manner about the face, shoulders, and back. His son, with some laborers, came to the rescue of Mrs. Darling, and took the husband away. On a promise of behaving himself they let him go. On Sanday morning he again went to the woods, and was seen by his son, who gave the alarm to his mother. She field to a neighbor's and would not go back. She came to Newton on Monday with the intention of making application for a divorce. Mr. Darling offered to compromise with her, but she would not hear of such a thing, considering her life in danger. In the mean time, the young folks, ignor-ant of the assault upon Mrs. Darling, passed by the house of a neighbor on Sunday morning, on their way home, supposing the father's anger appeased. He, however, was cursing them both and swearing that he would kill Dalley if he ever saw him; this was told them, and Dalley ran his horse past Darling's house, and sought safety elsewhere. This matter has caused mack suffering to all parties. Mr. Darling is a most respecta-ble man, and a member of a church; but his anger at this event seems to have completely overmastered him.

FIRE IN GORRCK STREET.

A few minutes before 3 o clock Thursday morning, a fire of unaccountable origin occurred in the cooper shop of John Himman, No. 106 Goerck street, causing the total destruction of the building and stock therein.
